Champions return to disc golf tourney

Most people might not know the names Mitch Sonderfan, Robert Nichols and David Straight, but all three have two things in common: They are past champions of the Brighton Legacy Foundation's Scholarship disc golf tournament and ... all three are returning to Benedict Park on Saturday for this year's ninth edition of the tourney.

The Mile High Disc Golf-sanctioned tournament has gotten so big that Benedict Park will be closed – including all park shelters – from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday to accommodate a full field of 30 teams (60 golfers – sorry no walk-ons this year), for the 36-hole event.

Competitors will play two rounds of nine holes in the morning and two in the afternoon. The "shotgun" start is at 8 a.m.

In addition to the past champions, course/tournament founders Camden Farmer and David Nunez, are among the players. The two brought the idea for the course, mainly on the perimeter of Benedict Park, to the Brighton Parks and Recreation Advisory Board in 2007. The Brighton Legacy Foundation sponsored its first Disc Golf Tournament in Benedict Park in 2008.

As the name suggests, the tournament is a fundraiser for the Brighton Legacy Foundation, which provides education scholarships for students and teachers in School District 27J.
