Anythink board approves ballot proposal

The Anythink Board of Trustees on Wednesday approved a ballot measure for additional funding for Anythink (also known as Rangeview Library District).

"As the county continues to grow and develop, the library system needs additional funding to expand its capacity and keep pace with growth," Anythink stated in a news release.

The additional funding would allow Anythink to expand service hours and provide more programs so people aren't turned away or waitlisted because of lack of capacity.

Funding also would provide additional computers, Internet access, technology- and skills-training materials, books, eBooks, DVDs and CDs to keep up with customer demand.

Funds also would be used to build at least two additional branches in Adams County.

On Sept. 4 the Adams County Board of County Commissioners will consider a resolution certifying the Anythink ballot proposal.

"Ten years ago, Anythink shifted its approach to become one of the most recognized libraries in the world," Anythink Board of Trustees President Lynne Fox said. "Since then, the needs of our rapidly growing and vibrant community have only increased. We now have an opportunity to meet that demand and support one of the community's most vital and trusted resources – the library."

Visit anythinklibraries.org/anythink-proposal for more information and details about the proposal.
